the full history of the proceedings and discussions of the body on which the destiny of the Republic depends.

The adoption of Congress has given the Globe an official character as the reporter of all that is said and done in the body. This sanction has been voted at every successive session for many years, and by members of all parties. The press, too, of all parties, has borne testimony to the fidelity with which the duty thus confided has been performed. The great celerity with which the letter-writers for the distant prees circulate through the telegraph their hurried accounts and views of the debates of Congress, renders more important than ever the full and exact official reports of the Congress, renders more important than ever the full and exact official reports of the Congress, renders more important documents and exact official reports of the Congress of the most part, the exact reports taken down by reporters, and which formerly, in a shape more or less abbreviated, went the rounds of the press. Now the telegraph accounts, with all their imperfections and variety of colorings, take the run of the country, and no press but the official reports and the miscellaneous matter ossential to their existence. While, therefore, the telegraph administers to the eager appetite of the public for Congress news, and meets the necessities of the political press, by furnishing a rapidly-written epitome suited to the taste of its patrons, perfect information of what passes in Congress is greatly diminished. The circulation of the official reports has been, to some extent, cut off by the crude and diversified accounts which, flying along the electric wires, satisfies curiosity, and it is almost in vain that truth puts on his boots to follow. Still there are a great many men of leisure and thoughs who like to see what is actually said and done in Congress, and to judge for themselves, rather than to receive impressions altogether from galvanic batteries. There are others, too, who, for the sake of the future, willingly which preserves a full record of the doings of the great moving and controlling power of the Republic.

The undersigned has made preparations commensurate with the increased importance of the duty he has undertaken as the only reporter and publisher of the complete debates and proceedings of both Houses of Congress. The coming session will probably be extended nine months, and the reports will not be comprised in less than 3,500 royal quarto pages of brevier and nonpareil type, making 4 volumes of near 900 pages each. The reports for the last long session made 3,596 royal quarto pages, and were bound in 4 volumes, averaging 974 royal quarto pages each.

I will publish in the APPENDIX for the next session all laws that may be passed during the session, which has not been done heretofore. Although this will increase in no small degree the expense of the publication, the subscription price will be the same that it has been for several years past.

The Dairy Glosz will be published during the session on a superfine double royal sheet. It will contain the debates as taken down by the reporters, and as altered by the speakers, whenever they make any alterations; the current news of the day, and this cellaneous matter. The main object for publishing the daily paper is to enable Members to see their remarks in it, and alter them if they shall think proper before they are published in the Congressional Glosz and Appendix.

The Congressional Glosz is made up of the daily proceedings of the two Houses of Congress, and printed on a double royal paper, with small type, (brevier and nonpareil,) in quarto form, each number containing sixteen royal quarto pages. The speeches of the Members, in this first form, are sometimes condensed—the full report of the prepared speeches being reserved for the Appendix. All resolutions, motions, and other proceedings, are given in the form of the Journals, with the yeas and mays on every important question.

The Appendix is made up of the President's Annual Message, the Reports of the princ bout the same number of pages during a session.

During the first month or six weeks of a session.

two numbers a week—one of the Congressional Gloss and one of the APPENDIX; but during the remainder of a session there is usually sufficient matter for two or three numbers of each every week. The next session will be unusually interesting; therefore I calculate that the Congressional Gloss and Appendix together will make at least ing; therefore I calculate that the CONGRESSIONAL GLOSE and APPENDIX together will make at least 3,500 large quarto pages, printed in small type—brevier and nonpareil. Complete Indexes to both will be furnished at the end of a session.

I will endeavor to print a sufficient number of surplus copies to supply all that may be miscarried, or lost in the mails; but subscribers should be very particular to file their papers carefully, for fear that I should not be able to supply all the lost numbers.

If subscribers shall not be entisfied with the work, the money paid by them for it will be refunded to them whenever they return the numbers funded to thein whenever they return the numbers which may have been received by them. I will give subscribers the subscription price for any of the previous volumes of the Congression and Globs or the Appendix, except for the last session, and will thank any person who will let me have them. I have a few copies of the back volumes of the Congression at Globs and Appendix for sale at $5 a volume bound, which it is probable will be disposed of soon; and when they are, they will them, no doubt, command at least $10 a volume, as they cannot be recrimted for less than that sum.

TAYLOR & MAURY, Worcester's Universal and Critical Die ionary of the English Language.

By J. E. Worcester, LL. D One volume, 8vo. sheep, 1032 pages—Price $350 The publishers respectfully invite attention to the following eminent testimony to the excellence of this standard dictionary.

The execution of this Dictionaryfullyanswers to its title. The Vocasulary is probably more comprehensive than that of all preceding English Dictionaries united. Constant reference is made to AUTHORITIES with respect to words newly introduced, and care is taken to note such as a retechnical foreign absolute new includent values. The duced, and care is taken to note such as a retechnical, foreign, obsolete, provincial, or vulgar. The dependence of the perintitions are clear and exact, and those pertaining to technical and scientific terms are specially valuable to the general reader. The author has evidently bestowed great labor on fronuciation. His system of Notation, which is easily understood, and founded on a more complete analysis of the vowel sounds than we have clsewhere met with, together with his plan of exhibiting all the best English authorities in relation to words differently pronounced by differentorthoepists, gives to this work important advantages as a Pronouncing Dictionary. In Orthography he has made no arbitrary changes, but where usage is various and fluctuating, he has aimed to be consistent, and to reduce to the same rules words of similar formation. The insertion of Grammatical forms and inreduce to the same rules words of similar forma-tion. The insertion of Grammatical forms and in-flections of words to a much greater extent than they are given in other English Dictionaries, and the short critical notes on the orthography, the pro-nunciation, the grammatical form and construc-tion, and the peculiar, technical, local, and Ameri-can uses of words interspersed through the volume, give to this work much additional value. The co-pressed the state of Medan Grammatical pages give to this work much additional value. The cepious Vocabulary of Modern Geographical names with their pronunciation, and a greatly enlarged and improved edition of Walker's Key to the pronunciation of Classical and Scripture proper names, are important appendages to the Dictionary.
Eighteen months have passed since this Dictionary was published; and its already extensive use, both among cultivated English readers, and men of wide learning affects growtesting now of its medit. We learning, affords good testimony of its merits. We confidently recommend it as containing an ample and careful view of the present state of our lanmeasures to place it upon a new and improved foundation, and to endow it with advantages possible sessed by few similar institutions in the country. The Academy, heretofore merged in the College, and of course subjected to all the evils which have been found to attend the amalgamation of the two departments in the same building, and under the same government, now enjoys the privilege of a separatecstablishment, without losing those which resultfrom its relation to the College proper.

A large and elegant edifice, with all the necessary fixures of a complete hoarding establishment has been erected and furnished, in which the students of the Academy board, under the immediate charge of the Principal and his Assistants; and all its exercises are conducted on a system of its own, uninterrupted by the interests or operations of the other department. The furniture of the study-rooms and dormitories has been chosen with previous reference to comfort and convenience for study; and no expense has been spared in providing the apparatus necessary to render the means of instruction complete; giving to Newark Academy facilities for private study and comfortable accommodation of students, fully equal to those afforded by many of our colleges.

From its intimate relation to the College, students of the Academy enjoy many advantages not generally obtained at institutions of this kind. Those who wish to pursue some particular branch which falls more properly within the College course, may be admitted to recitein any of the College classes. Students also of proper age and discretion, by recommendation of the Principal, and permission of the Faculty, may enjoy the use of the College Lisberry without additional charge. Admission also may be had to the Lectures, and such other privileges of the College as can be profitably enjoyed by academical students.
